Chennai Metro Rail Limited (CMRL) will impose a fine of ₹200 on passengers from Sunday if they are found not wearing a mask or wearing it in a way that does not cover the mouth and nose while travelling in trains or on the station premises.

According to officials of

CMRL, if a station controller or flying squad notices a passenger without a mask, they will collect the fine and issue a receipt.

Even though staff at the stations allow entry only if commuters wear a mask and despite regular announcements on trains and in stations, many take them off after entering the train.
